

R-2.8

The function to be called is `GeomProgression::firstValue()`, and hence the value 1 is returned. The reason is that the function `firstValue()` is declared to be virtual (in `Progression`), which means that the actual type of the object, and not the declared type of the pointer, is used to determine which member function is to be called.